Mr. Cooper, I am writing to you to voice my concern about the gas pipeline that has begun in NC. With my own personal experiences that happened to me with my property in TX. It was the Biggest mistake that I agreed on. These Big Oil companies came thru & preyed on the rural areas, & the folks that have had property for years. These folks (including myself), refused, & was totally blindsided by the whole experience. I pushed back, refused for months before they explained that it was gonna happen no matter my decision. Let me tell you this, that they came to my property did their Seismic Blasting, installed the gas pipeline across my land, then bought the land next door for a million & installed a saltwater reservoir, which is lit up like a x-mas tree. At the present time, my water well pours with sand in it. Which really angers me, because I never wanted any of this to begin with. Now with no findings of minerals, and a pipeline that is buried on my property for what? These Big Oil companies are presently in Chapter 11 bankruptcy. I hate hearing that this Beautiful State of NC is going thru what many of my fellow Texans went thru. It's Sad to hear that you are gonna accept 58 billion, & state that you are gonna give it to the NC educators. Please, take the extra step, & look into what you are initiating upon your fellow NC Citizens. I also am aware of the pipeline that is being proposed in the NC waters. Look at the Gulf Coast. The water is murky with tarballs that float to the beaches. Which is one of the reasons why the sand is dark looking? I know that I am rambling on, & on. Believe me~ I was born, & raised in Texas. I do Love Texas, it's in my heart. But I married an NC Veteran 30yrs ago, & we moved back here in 2005. We were living in Louisiana when Hurricane Katrina came thru & wiped us out. My husband's mother was frail, & needed her baby home. He grew up farming tobacco, & went into the Navy right out of high school. So I am gonna close my letter by stating that NC is One Beautiful State. I just am disappointed with what is going on at the present time. I am No protester. I am registered as an unaffiliated voter, & I did vote for you. Thank you for letting me voice my opinion. Robbie Beaman
